Elephants

Elephants live in families. When a baby elephant is born, the family is very excited. The elephants make lots of noise, and they come close to the baby to welcome it. The mother elephant helps the baby to stand up. It must learn to stand up so it can drink its mother's milk.

Baby elephants are big! They are about 100 kilograms when they are born. That's twenty-eight times bigger than a human baby. They drink about 11 liters of milk a day. That's a lot of milk!

A mother elephant looks after her baby very carefully. If it moves away from her, she brings it back. If the sun is very hot, she moves the baby under her body. If a baby can't climb over something, its mother helps it with her trunk. Sometimes other young elephants help a mother elephant look after her baby. This is how young elephants learn to look after babies.

Elephants walk from place to place looking for food and water. When the elephants are walking, the baby sometimes holds its mother's tail. If a lion comes close to, all the elephants stop and stand close together with the babies in the middle.

1. How do the elephants' family feel when the baby is born?
 - a. They feel very angry.
 - b. They feel very surprise.
 - c. They feel very excited.
 - d. They feel very sad.

2. Who helps a baby elephant to stand up?
