Dansai was an ancient city in the past and well-known as the land of friendship and the Phi Ta Khon festival. However it is said that the origin of Dansai comes from Danchang because Dansai is located at a checkpoint in the Kingdom of Lanchang.

It was controlled by the French government for 3 years about 100 years ago. King Rama V gave Dansai its independence from the French government.

As time passed, the evolution of the local language changed the name from Danchang to Dansai. Phra Kaewarsa was the first governor of Dansai.

Nowadays, Dansai is a district located in the west of Loei province along the Man river. It is divided into 10 sub-districts. It has many interesting places to visit, especially historical sites, such as Pra That Si Song Rak, a very famous symbol of lasting peace between Ayutthaya and Si Sattana Khanahut in the 15th century.

How to get there?

Dansai city is about 83 kilometers from Loei (along Loei-Dansai National Highway) and approximately 450 kilometers from Bangkok.

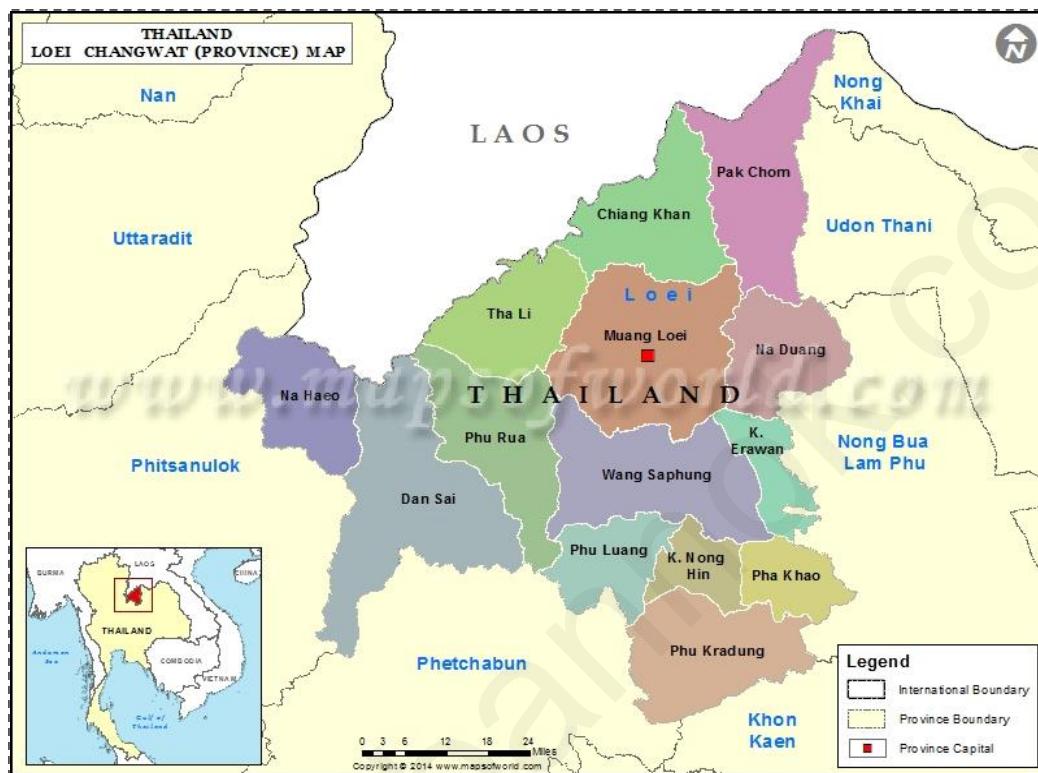

There are 3 routes from this highway to Dansai. The first route is through Nakhonthai district of Phisanulok province. The second route is through Lomsak district of Phetchabun province and the last one is through Phurua district of Loei province.

Dansai is in the center of a valley on the border of Thailand and Laos. It is surrounded by mountains and forests. The mountains that can be seen from Dansai are part of the Petchaboon Range.

Dansai district has an area of 1,732 square kilometers and has a population of about 51,237 people. The physical feature of the land is like the bottom of a pan.

Description : Map showing the administrative divisions of the Loei Province, Thailand.
 ที่มา: <http://www.mapsofworld.com/thailand/provinces/loei-map.html>

It's boundaries are as follows :

- To the north is Laos.
- To the east is Phurua district.
- To the south is Lomsak district, Phet-cha-boon province.
- To the west is Nakhonthai district, Phitsanuloke province.

Dansai is the origin of many rivers and streams. The Man river is the most important as it is at the heart of the community in Dansai. It flows from south to north passing through the center of town.

The weather in Dansai is very nice, but it is very cold in the winter, so tourists like to visit Dansai in the winter.

What grows in Dansai?

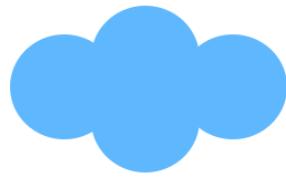

The Dansai area is a narrow plain. Most of the people are farmers and earn their living pleasantly on a farm. They grow rice, corn and beans. They use the small plain area for farming. The Man River flows through it.

The village of Dansai is in a valley. It is surrounded by green woods and has a beautiful sky. Dansai is an interesting place to go to relax. You can breathe in clean air and be close to nature.

Dansai people pay high respect to Phra That Si Song Rak. Phra That Si Song Rak, the symbol of Loei province, is in Dansai. The people living in Dan Sai come from Luang Phra Bang, Laos many hundreds of years ago.

Dansai district is a small beautiful town which is rich in nature and interesting places, such as Pra That Si Song Rak, Neramid Temple, Phonchai Temple and the Phi Ta Khon Musuem. Another place not to be missed is the One Tambol One Product shop. There are many OTOP products from many districts for sale at the shop, so tourists should take the time to look at them.
